From A pUpPy To A HuSky

Over the course of four years a person goes through different stages. Every new year comes with a new challenge whether it's a personal challenge or getting through your next year of math.

For me my first challenge was getting over my middle school shyness, then it was learning to focus on school and not so much on friends. One of the last and hardest challenges was learning to love myself for who I am. The accomplishment that has made the biggest impact on my life. Ultimately all of my experiences I have had here at Hoover have made me the person I am today. I have learned to treat people right, they will respect you for it.

Appreciate what people do for you, don't expect it. And most of all, you are who you are, so love it and be proud.

The yearbook staff has chosen our theme From a Puppy to a Husky to represent all of the stages any high schooler goes through. It happens to us all on our journey through our adolescent years. The staff this year has been the best staff I have been apart of in my three years of yearbook, two as Editor in Chief. We hope that you will enjoy our book that we have worked so hard to bring to you.

SENIOR HOLLINGSWORTH HAS BEEN HERE SINCE THE SCHOOL OPENED ALL THE WAY BACK IN 1968.

Gerald Hollingsworth has been at Hoover longer than any student has been alive. He has been teaching Spanish here for 37 years, and he loves it. "I'll be working here until I retire," Hollingsworth said.

Not that Spanish at Hoover is his only job. Hollingsworth also teaches drivers ed, Spanish at DMACC, and is one of the original motorcycle instructors at Motorcycle Safety Foundation.

Hollingsworth was offered a job at Hoover the day after his wife told him she was pregnant. "I wanted to teach Spanish because I knew that it was going to be an important asset because of historical trends," Hollingsworth said.

"Spanish is a challenging class," said senior Allie Setka who is in Hollingsworth's Spanish 4 class.

"I like how Senor teaches because he doesn't lecture. He lets you do your work but will help you if you need it." Said Setka.

"I teach class with a lot of interactive work towards proficiency, in which the student recognizes their responsibility to learn." Said Hollingsworth.

Not every part of Hollingsworth's job is easy though. "The most challenging part of teaching is meeting the needs of all the students and having the student recognize they need to learn," Hollingsworth said.

"My favorite part of teaching is the students. They want to learn and I can teach them," Hollingsworth said, "Although, I don't teach Spanish, I teach students."

It's known state wide, nation wide, and worldwide. It's Mole day and it's celebrated here!

Many of the students in Dale Howe's chemistry classes experience this rare occasion. So, what is a mole? Why is it significant? How do you celebrate Mole day? A mole can be defined as a certain number of things, and its number would be 6.02×10^{23} . Mole day is celebrated on October 23 or some may be celebrated on June 3 due to the numbers.

"Chemist every where love the mole," Howe said.

Howe has been doing this event for five years at Hoover and two years before that. The purpose was to determine the size of the mole, and to have fun learning about it.

"The day is just really making a big deal of the mole," Howe said.

The students were able to learn about this number using M&M's and skittles. Many of the students' favorite parts were getting the candy and a day free from class. Also, the students enjoyed playing the games. The candy, the games, and the free day can compare to the highlight of the day, which was the Mole song, which was sung by Howe.

"I didn't know what to expect. I was surprised about the whole thing, sophomore Josh Sheridan said.

"It was very fun and getting the candy was the best part about it," junior Vanessa Lewis said.

Even though this unusual and exciting event has ended, the students look forward to other chapters, labs, and experiments such as, controlled solutions, and burning copper wire. Another interesting project the classes will be doing before Spring Break will be making coated bottles. Nevertheless, Howe expresses there won't be another experiment or subject that is celebrated like the mole.

Howe always enjoys doing this occasion each year, and believes that the students have fun with the day too. Yet, she stress that the students haven't use the mole enough to know how difficult it is to understand it, and in order to do well in the class math is very essential.

"My favorite part was just singing and watching the kids think I'm weird," Howe said.

Math and Science

"I like chemistry because it's very hands on," junior Austin Carr said. Senior Brad Crookshank and Carr working on the lab Recovery of an Ionic Solid.

"Chemist everywhere love the mole." Dale Howe and her famous mole celebrate the day! Every year she celebrates Mole Day on October 23.

"It's very interesting, and interactive," junior Logan Karsten said. Karsten in Mr. Hall's 3rd hour chemistry class measuring up for his lab. Karsten really relates to science because his fellow classmates call him the weatherman. He's always giving the daily weather reports to his classmates.

USUALLY WE AS UPPERCLASSMAN DON'T SPEND MUCH TIME THINKING ABOUT FRESHMAN BUT I THOUGHT WE SHOULD DO SOMETHING DIFFERENT FOR A CHANGE SO I MET UP WITH A FRESHMAN TO FIND OUT HOW ART INFLUENCES HER!

Page design and story by sanita zulic

Abbbbbb! Freshman Mirela Demirovic taking some time out and drawing some things down. "I like art because it helps me express myself artistically," Demirovic said.

Art teacher Bob Wilkerson has been teaching art for 39 years. He's doing a good job with the classes. Take a look at the display outside of the art room, sometimes we have ourselves some Picassos at Hoover.

Being a freshman isn't always easy, there's the upperclassmen, then there's the teachers, the new classes and yeah once more they are the youngest at the school. So there really isn't much time spent on freshman they just kind of have to learn on how to adjust to high school and the older kids. But I decided since it is my last year and all that maybe we should do a story on a freshman, one in particular one that enjoys art.

Mirela Demirovic is a freshman who has taken an interest in art, she says she just likes to draw but others think that there's more to it.

"She has strong creative skills and she needs to channel those in the right direction." Art teacher Bob Wilkerson said.

"Mirela is very enthusiastic about art, she's a perfectionist, if it's not exactly right then she like re-does the whole thing." Freshman Alma Cocic said.

So you wonder why she has taken such an interest in art?

Well I do! "Art helps me get my emotions out and express myself in artistic ways." Demirovic said.

"And high school art classes give you more variety and more projects on what to draw and what to do, so I enjoy it more than middle school art."

And does she get along with Wilk?

"He's nice, he's pretty cool," she said. Does she plan on taking art again?

"I plan on taking art throughout high school," she said.

Going to a history class has always been a drag for me. Just the thought of Wars and Kings and Revolutions and so on but, really it's not just me that's exactly the kind of attitude that your average student has.

This leads to people not being interested which leads to sleeping in class or just not paying attention. Which then leads to low grades, then of course comes the trouble with parents, and we'll just stop right there. Anyway teachers really do want students to learn something believe it or not. So, they try to get kids more interested and in order to achieve this they focus their attention to make class more fun.

World History and Psychology teacher Doug Wheeler likes to tell them a story instead of giving them a bunch of facts.

"I try to use humor to keep them alert so that they pay attention," Wheeler said.

Maureen Murphy who's the American History and Street Law teacher also says she likes to have a sense of humor.

"We also do role playing, we work in groups, and watch history movies, I like to mix it up," Murphy said.

As you can see humor is kind of the key to keep a class alert.

"I like my students and I like to create a good environment so that my students succeed," Murphy said.

Today's class is about crime and punishment. American History teacher Maureen Murphy who also teaches Street Law, is keeping busy by doing more hands on things with the students.

World History and Psychology teacher Doug Wheeler is trying his best to ignore our cameras while he's teaching this time we caught him off guard. Usually he's known to do some crazy moves and faces. Wheeler has also started teaching a new class this year called Leadership.

The Fosse Troupe shows their innocence in Chicago's "Cell Block Tango". "He ran into my knife," said June, who is played by Stephanie Jacobson. "He ran into my knife ten times!"

SOLO ACTS INVADE THE MUSICAL THEATRE REVIEW.

HoOvEr

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY ALYSSA TAPPS

Hoover's auditorium has become a Broadway stage...kind of. The vocal music department holds a Musical Theatre Review every two years. But this time around it will be something completely different than before. Not only did the music department have different teachers, but also different talent. It's not just the choirs that are heard, but also many separate solos, duets and groups that had to audition.

Groups have had to work vigorously on their choreography. "It was really hard to learn the dance, but I think it will turn out great," said Stephanie Jacobson who is one of the six members of the Fosse Troupe and are performing "Cell Block Tango" from Chicago. There are also eight soloists who have put together their own interpretation of their songs.

If you love musicals, you'll love this. It has a little bit of everything from a total of fifteen Broadway musicals. The turn out will be tremendous. Will you be there?

Sarah Gude, Megan Kirschbaum, Anna Danielson, and Julia Busiek show that "Mama, I'm a big girl now".

Last year the music department made some big changes, and still is. One of the changes included new choir directors. With new directors came new ideas. The music department decided to come together for a whole night of drama, art, and of course music.

The outcomes for most band and orchestra concerts aren't very large. The Fine Arts Concert gives a chance for everyone to see the band and orchestra in all their glory, besides seeing the band on the football field. "It was cool to know that people were seeing us play that usually don't get to," senior Emma Berry said.

The concert was held in the large gym and it was like looking at the crowd for a Hoover vs. Roosevelt game. It wasn't only parents that attended but even friends and fellow students. Although the concert lasted for two hours and everyone had to sit on the wooden bleachers, everyone left with a little more holiday cheer on their face.

The finale of the concert was the orchestra, band, all the choirs, and even audience members coming together to perform the "Hallelujah" chorus. Parents, students, teachers, and even alumni did their best to sing along. "It really helped you see how much people get along during the holidays," Berry said. It was the performing arts night to shine. And they shined bright!

"No matter how bad the deadlines get you guys (newspaper and yearbook) come through." Timm Pilcher, Adviser

"I love how we have deadlines but we also have time to get everything done. Pilcher really trusts us to be independent. I just love this class." Heidi Pierson, Yearbook and newspaper consist of daily deadlines that must be met by the end of the period. If you miss one you drop a grade. If you miss more than three you're off the staff.

Deadlines, Deadlines, Deadlines. If you can't meet them, you are in trouble. Yearbook

"You have to be organized and do your stuff on time if you want to pass this class," Blair Parker said. This is Parker's second year on yearbook staff. "I stressed myself out all last year and I felt like I had too much to do," Parker said.

Brittany Reasby however has different kinds of stress. "I haven't had journalism since first semester of tenth grade and now I'm a senior so it'll be less stressful when I refresh my memory," Reasby said.

Now, although yearbook can be stressful and as Pilcher said, "it is like having a baby", it's really fun.

Newspaper can be more stressful because they have to put out a paper every two weeks. "Newspaper is very high intensity but it motivates me when someone comes up to me and tells me that they enjoyed my story," opinion editor Mitch Smith said.

"My favorite part of yearbook is just how close the people get by the end of the year. We all become really good friends and I'm going to miss everyone," Sanita Zulic said.

"Deadlines are most stressful because the pressure is there. I FEEL IT! I FEEL IT!" Amela Demirovic said.

Even though yearbook and newspaper classes make you eat bagels and drink coffee every morning along with losing a lot of precious sleep at night, give you migraines, stress the hell out of you, make you never want to do it again in your life, but after those babies (the yearbook and the newspaper) are done it makes you want to do it all over again.

WITH NEW SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS AND NEW ADMINISTRATION, NEW RULES ARE UPON US.

With new administration comes new rules.

Which means in our school we just have to deal with it.

Connie Cook however does not just come bearing a sheet of new rules, she comes with big plans for Hoover High school. Cook, "I want more AP classes and dual classes with DMMAC. More challenging classes for students who do not wish to go to central," Cook said.

She has plans to make Hoover into a diverse educational center. "I work hard on getting peaceful resolutions of problems of all kids. I try to meet with different kids to get ideas what is happening in different groups every three weeks. I want to make school fun," Cook said.

The administration is trying new rules and new techniques to try to advance the education level. At least one teacher in Hoover believes they are doing a "very affective job," John Eller said. These efforts have made one teacher agree, but students is another matter.

"They should allow people to get drinks but turn them off a two minutes before class starts so they get to class on time." this seems to be agreed upon by much of the school body." Trung Nygun States.

"The School Board sets down regulations like turning of the candy and pop machines," Cook said. The School Board requires this of all Des Moines school's.

New school Board members include Ako Abdul-Samad and Connie Boesen. The School Board is having trouble creating policy and programs for the ever changing Des Moines School District. They are all doing there best to cut enough money to make ends meet.

The School Board while trying to meet everyone's expectations, they can not always do it. "I think real leadership means making the people understand that to advocate Des Moines Public Schools they need to realize that it is more expensive and the taxes need to rise to pay for it," Eller said. This echo's what every student at Hoover feels, lack of money.

Connie Cook poses for the camera as she instructs her staff at Meredith Middle School. She's standing behind the main desk at their office.

We see it every day. Teachers trying to use less paper, programs being slashed and cut, and finally teachers being cut. The School Board is trying its best to make ends meet, but cutting programs is not going to accomplish this. We need more money.

Ako Abdul-Samad listens to a teacher talk about a new student teacher program. The School Board meets at Central Academy.

David Maxwell sits at computer working. He is located in the new V.P. office in the student center.

Charlene Hendrix is disciplining a student in her office. Her new office is located in the main office.

Cindy Flesch is working on her computer in her office. She has a office in the main office.

2. The food and pop machines have been shut off during the school day now.

What are you doing at 7:10 in the morning? Well for the 10 members of the Senior Board, once a week they are sitting in the library or a vice principal's office discussing all the events of their senior year. There are many issues that are discussed at these meetings.

"At the beginning of the year they talk about fundraising, their class motto and color," coordinator Charlene Hendryx said. As the year goes on they discuss the more important issues; senior breakfast, prom and, of course, graduation! They talk about how they will decorate, what the graduation invitations will look like, and what will be served at the breakfast.

"There are more girls than guys and the girls tend to be better at the whole decorating and coordinating thing," Hendryx said.

Senior Board President Mitch Smith, is in charge of planning the five-year reunion.

"It can be stressful towards the end," Smith said. The members are all chosen by a vote. They choose to run for a position like president, vice president, or just a representative. The winners are then announced at the beginning of the next year.

"I want to be on the Senior Board next year because you get free donuts! Plus I want to be able to help decide what goes on in my class," junior Ashley Denham said.

Sisters for Success is a group or club for African-American girls to unit and learn about life after school and college. "The purpose is to stop violence and prepare the girls for college and help them out" Jazmine Cason, 12 said.

The club started first at East and they saw a big difference, so they decided to do it to all Des Moines Public Schools.

During the Black History Month the girls decorate cases. Also they have talent shows, which took place at Hoover this year, and after each program they get together and talk about what they did.

For the talent show the girls acted out about how their life is living where it's not safe and what is going on to some people here today. Also they had steppers and a singing group singing traditional songs.

"We sit and talk about our problems and what's going on and how you can improve" Britini Atkins, 11 said.

"This year I didn't do as much as I did last year because I had a lot going on, but we only meet once a month or something just to keep updated" Atkins said.

There are two different groups...Sisters for Success and Imani. Imani is just a group that involves boys also while, sisters for success is only for the girls.

Looks very comfortable!!

Tameka Hilson gets inside the case to stable a few papers. The papers later blended in with all the statues and books from famous African-American authors. It all represents the history of African-American cultures.

Very carefully Mrs. Bastian takes out a statue to put in the case. Mrs. Bastian has been leading this program for the second year now and she thinks they have improved.

Mrs. Bastian helps provide the product for the case and uses her imagination to make it all put in place.

"Sisters for Succes is a program to help young African-American women with school and prepare for college. Also to stop violence and fights and bond more together" Jazmine Cason, 12 said.

"My freshman year there was a lot of fights now it seems like there are less. It really does help out a lot" Brittini Atkins, 11 said.

Jazmine Cason, 12 hands Stephanie Williams, 11 the statue to put in place. They had to open up the whole case including the back to make sure everything sets smoothly and looks great.

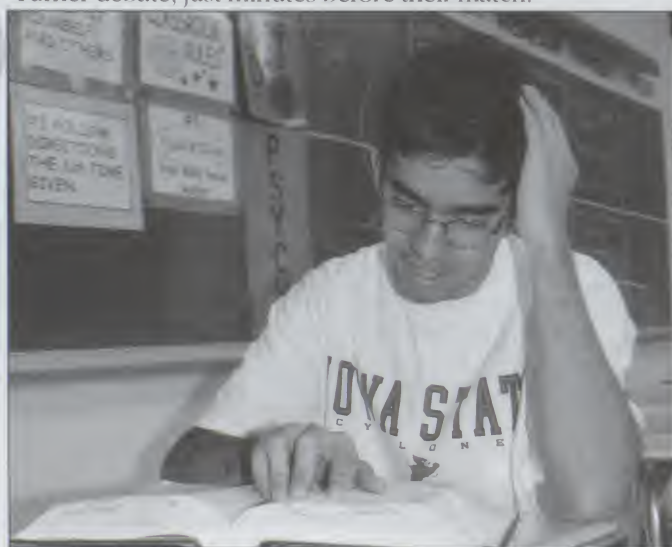

Team Work!!!

The girls work together as a team to make the case beautiful and make everyone understand what it stands for. After all the hard work you can stand back and enjoy the great case.

"I think we should discuss how it effects the nation," freshman Loan Dinh said. Dinh and Freshman Shazif Bachelani discuss what approach they will use in their Ted Turner debate, just minutes before their match.

"I like to listen to classical music before a debate," senior Zahir Bachelani said. The classical music clears his mind of all thoughts. Bachelani is hard at work studying for his next debate.

Second place baby! Senior Whitney Thompson admiring her medal for her excellent performance for Ted Turner debate. This is Thompson's second year on the debate team.

Whose life is more stressful and hectic? A career and family oriented dad, or a high school senior whose year is filled with college applications, writing essays and stress on top of stress? Well, what about a first year teacher whose days are filled with many activities. Some students may recognize Jon Rubino from last year as Timm Pilcher's student teacher. However, he's no student teacher this year, but creative writing and English teacher. As well as the new head coach of the Debate and Forensic team.

"One of the things I really enjoyed was public speaking and the interaction with students," Rubino said.

Rubino's focus for this year is to make the program more interesting and to become familiar with the eight to ten students that the team does have. The team is very young and has few veterans returning. Rubino believes that the students are self-motivated and he is just there to push and encourage them when they are daunted.

Debates main focus is to create bills. There are different types of debating such as dramatic interpretation, domestic exempt or individual events. This program runs from October to mid April.

"Kirk Johnson did a great job laying the foundation, and I would like to improve the program to make it better and continue to grow and be strong," Rubino said.

Not only does this man coach debate and travel to five different classrooms during the day, but also is the soccer coach for Urbandale High, and has a pregnant wife Jennifer.

"It doesn't bother me that much, as long as I stay organized."

Rubino prepares the night before because if he doesn't then his days can get very stressful. His nights are filled with check papers for his English and coaching the debate team. He's only freetime would be on the weekend. However, sometimes then is he doing activities relating to debate or soccer.

Freshman John Stoltz reciting his Ted Turner speech to the judge. Stoltz and his partner senior Sean Burton debated against students from Norwalk. The debate took place at East High School.

Debate Terminology

Ted Turner- model after CNN crossfire

Lincoln-Douglas- one on one debate philosophical arguments to support the refute of the resolution.

Individual Speaking- students give a number of different speeches (humorous, domestic exempt, duo interpretation, etc.)

Student Congress- the students follow parliamentary procedures.

A YOUNG MAN TAKEN FROM HIS MOTHER, DIAGNOSIS WITH PSYCHOSOCIALISM DWARFISM, BUT GRADUATES NUMBER TWO IN HIS CLASS.

"I really enjoyed going to the Halloween Dance with Jon," senior Sean Burton said. Sophomore Jon Foutz and Burton dressed as twins at the dance.

instant, Burton started screaming bloody murder.

"People started pulling us in opposite direction, but all I wanted was my mother," Burton said.

So, where was Burton living through all this? He was placed into two foster homes. From February to August of '89 he lived one family. However, Burton was consistently barfing and the doctors and the family thought Burton was rebelling. Then from August of '89 until October of '90 he was placed with the Evans and life started looking better for Burton.

"I enjoyed it. Their child was a month older than I was and I considered them a second family," Burton said.

The family life with the Evans was going well, but school was another subject. Burton still struggled with problems in reading and math. Therefore, in Preschool and HeadStart he received additional help, but criticism along with it.

"A math lab teacher compared me to the puppy in the book The Pookie lil Puppy, and basically said I was slower than the dog in the book," Burton said.

After the court cases, living in foster homes and emotional turmoil the time had come. The courts finally realized that it was not Mrs. Burton fault. Burton's stepfather adopted him, and Mrs. Burton gained full custody of her son. Burton was home.

Burton decided to help others because of the difficulties in his life. He has volunteered countless hours at Mercy Hospital. At school he is in a groundbreaking and exciting program that allows students to connect with students of physical and mental disabilities, and develop unique friendships. This program is called Best Buddies. Why is this program so special? What's its purpose?

"Purpose, is to lessen the gap between special and regular Ed students. Also for people branch out and special Ed students don't feel isolated, and feel like they have friends," senior and president of Hoover High's Best Buddies Megan Bartlett said.

"Taking a bite out of Boundaries," senior and secretary of Best Buddies Mitch Smith said.

Burton spends time with his best buddy junior Jon Foutz by tutoring him in algebra, attending football games, and attending the program's events such as, the Best Buddies Halloween dance. Foutz and Burton have many things in common, so this match worked out great for the both of them.

"We are both interested in medicine. He enjoys microbiology. While I enjoy the blood and guts," said Burton.

Foutz feels he is extremely privileged to have a good friend like Burton. He appreciates him and all his help.

"Burton is open minded, willing to anyone who needs help, and always there if you need someone to cheer you up. One of the best guys could meet," Foutz said.

Even though strife has played a role in his life. Burton has found motivation out of the situation. Burton is ranked number two in a class of 230 students, and has received numerous awards for his academics. His teachers and some of his fellow classmates speak very highly of him.

He has proven to be very successful to the doctors, the teacher that thought he was dumb, and anyone else that doubted him.

"I'm really happy that people can change and overcome handicaps. I enjoy proving people wrong."

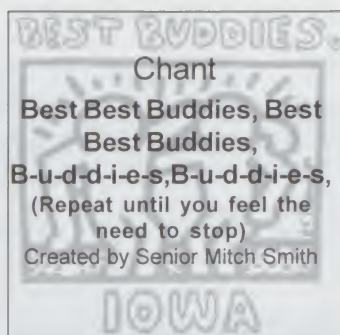

Bobbing for apples was a classic bit at the Halloween dance. Ashley Gilbet from Johnston was the reigning champion. She was quick !

"My favorite part was hanging with my best buddies and getting to know them," senior Jessica Monroe said. Junior John Gracia and Monroe share a laugh after the movie " Radio."

With so many different clubs and sports it is kind of hard to keep track of all of them.

Groups like ICP (Inter Cultural Club) and Science Bound are working on getting more students involved. Senior Melisa Jukic is the president of ICP.

Previous years, Bosnian students were mostly involved but now we are more diverse. There is Bosnians, Mexicans, Asians, African-Americans, Afghanis, ect.

"Twelve years ago, ICP used to be like IMANI where there were only African-Americans and they went out and performed," coordinator Janice Ochoa said.

"Then they decided that they wanted to make it more diverse and then the Hispanics started joining and then Bosnians and now everyone came together."

There are a lot of things that ICP does that a lot of us are not aware of.

"We plan the diversity week. We decide who will perform, when it will be, and everything," Jukic said.

"We also have an exchange program. Last year we had two girls from SE Polk and they followed me and Elvedina Suvic to our classes. They were amazed at how diverse our school was. They loved it so much that they even came back for the assembly. Those are the kinds of things that I am proud of."

ICP is open to any student.

Science Bound, however, you have to start as early as eighth grade.

everyone is in it during high school," senior Mike Wright said.

The program is associated with Iowa State University. Iowa State provides money so the students can experience different careers and classes offered at ISU.

The program pushes students to be more motivated for college. "This year, there is more hassle with the grades, you have to maintain a GPA of 3.0 or higher in order to attend trips to ISU," Wright said.

The meetings are every Monday after school and they do activities and have guest speakers. When there isn't a guest speaker, they work on homework.

They are determined to make this school more fun and to provide more activities for the students. "We try to "Everyone whines about our school, they should just join Student Council and make a difference," Cocic said. You can join student council by becoming a representative for your grade or run for one of the higher positions such as president or vice-president.

Ever walk in the mall and see pictures of students and recognize some of them? Or wonder what do NHS kids do and how good is that toward school?

NCYL and NHS are both basically the same thing. It's all goods for community and students in high school.

"NHS is National Honor Society for kids at Hoover who have a 3.5 GPA, who show leadership and good decision making around school" says Drew Neal, 11.

This is Neals first year on NHS and he likes it.

"We do community service projects that help out the neighborhood and needy people and we help to do fund raisers with the Best Buddies program"says Neal.

"I help showl old peoples driverways and I help give trees and toys for Christmas for the poor little kids".

NCYL on the other hand is just offered to seniors and for that you have to be nominated by your teachers your junior yeat.

"We're in the picutres in the mall and beginning of the school year we have to go to Drake for a 2 day meeting thing, and we talked about how to represent ourselves to other students and hwo to be leaders" says Tim Tasler, 12.

But thats not all...

Most students will get scholarships and help thru college.

"Selected few got accepted for scholarships and 4 other people got big money and went to St.Louis to represent Iowa in this meeting" says Tasler.

So what do teachers vote you by?

"Teachers vote you by being a good student and having a good personality and the activities your involved in. It's just to look good for college. So that the community knows we're good students" says Tasler.

That way, if your wanting your picture in the mall you have to have a good personality and be a good student. It all pays off in college!

NHS/NCYL

Katie Hart, 12 and Daniel Brudley poses for the picture for NHS. NHS stands for National Honor Society which is a program for kids who have a 3.5 GPA. They do stuff like community service and volunteer work to help the neighborhood. Also they do a lot of charity work too.

Study Hard!!! Nick McCarty, 12 studies hard in Chemistry class. McCarty has been in NHS for 3 years and tries to keep the hard work up. Most of the seniors are in NHS because they know by now hard work pays off.

Semira Cocic, 11 listens in Mrs. Shalpers relationship class. In order to stay in NHS you got to keep paying attention to class and maintain your 3.5 GPA. Cocic has been in NHS for 2 years now and says she enjoys the work and help they do.

Talking smack?! Brittany Reasby, 12 and Louise Brown, 12 talk about the art cases. Brown has been in NHS for a while too and is very up dated with her school work. Hard work really pays off!!

Junior Heather Fosbough takes the swing. Fosbough represents not only the golf team but also Mock Trial and Academic Decathlon.

THE GIRL'S SWIM TEAM HAD A TRULY UPLIFTING YEAR. THE SENIORS STUCK OUT AND HELPED THE YOUNGER SWIMMERS GET EVERYTHING FROM THE PERFECT STROKE TECHNIQUE, TO PASSING ON THE EXCITING TRADITIONS.

The girls swim team had some awesome senior leadership this year.

"The seniors are more mature and know what to expect when it comes to swimming. They are the keepers of the traditions," swim coach Tim Brown said. Brown swam all four years in high school and also in college at Texas A&M as a walk-on.

"The difference in girls and boys swimming is that girls are more emotional, and they work harder. I prefer to coach girls," Brown said.

The senior girls show their younger teammates the ropes.

"Everybody pushes each other," senior Jessica Monroe said.

"The seniors have become more motivated. They help the young ones by leading by example," Brown said.

Meredith Middle School eighth grader, Hannah Smith, has been swimming for five years with the Northside Otters. She has started practicing with the Marlins this year in preparation for next year, when she will be a freshman.

"The Otter's practices are harder than Hoover's," Smith said.

Brown had a different opinion.

"Our swimmers this year are better than any other year. They've worked hard from the start. They all have a specialty and help each other out. The freshmen are really easy to coach," Brown said.

"Swimming is different than other sports because you have to work really hard at practice. But there is also a lot more bonding," Monroe said.

"There is a lot of sportsmanship," Smith agreed.

The girls practiced every weekday at 6 am and also after school from 3-5:30 pm. They also practiced on Saturday mornings at 7 am. They had meets every Tuesday and some on Saturdays. For the seniors who have been at this for 4 years, it's not hard to see why they are such great leaders, and why the team is so close.

This is not the first time the drill team tried to have their try-outs. This time it actually went down though!

STORY BY CARRIE LAIDLAW

The tryouts for drill team consisted of three days. Two days were clinics and the last day was for the actual tryouts. The first day they learned the dance that the new choreographer (former Hoover student) Derrick Wilson choreographed and taught them. Then they learned parts of the dance that their Co-Captains Britini Atkins and Machae Fry choreographed.

The second day they went over and over the dances and talked about the tryouts.

The third day was the actual tryouts.

The first thing they had to do was a toe touch.

Then they had to do their next jump. That was the hurke.

For the tryouts they had to do three dances.

The first one they did was the dance Wilson choreographed.

The next dance was the one Atkins and Fry choreographed.

The last dance was a dance that you had to choreograph yourself.

"It has to be 30 seconds and it has to be original," said new drill coach Carla Brown-Marble.

After they did everything they were told who made it would be posted the next week sometime.

It was posted the next Wednesday and there were 26 people who made the team.

The drill team dances at a basket game to a Jackson medley. The songs were beat it and the way you move by Micheal Jackson, what have you done for me lately by Janet Jackson and I want you back by the Jackson five

WHAT THE BOYS SWIM TEAM IS REALLY MADE OF.

STORY BY TIM TASLER AND PAGE DESIGN BY JACI UZZO

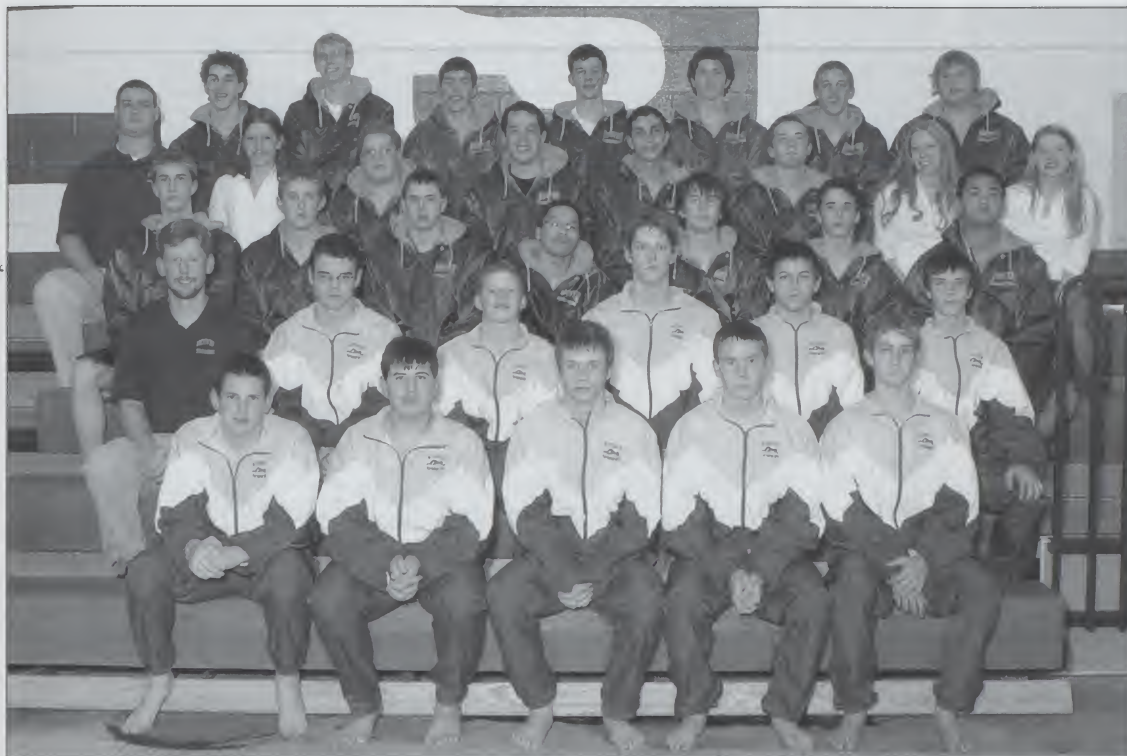

As another year of Hoover swimming comes to an end, swimmer's goals are met and broken, while others are too close to call. An emotional 5 months of 6 a.m. practices and after school workouts. 24 boys in one pool with 5 lanes, tempers flare. Boys will be boys. A million bus trips and away meets. Having to give your hardest everyday at meets, every event to get the team to its highest goal. Lactate sets and 20 x 100's on Wednesdays, the pain is felt. These are all things that two coaches went through to bring the Huskie swim team to a peak it hasn't been to in years. Coach Roska was done. A motivation that told us never to quit and to give it our all. Not a coach but an inspiration that kept us going. Coach Lowe the enforcer of all that was evil. Keeping tabulation of exactly how many yards we missed and with lightening speed converting them into grueling sit-ups. Making sure everyone was well hydrated at all times and always punctual for that monster motivation quote. A mouse problem? Don't worry, Lowe's on it!

Hoover has seen a improvement in their boys swim program and it's not due to swimmers. It's two coaches who valued what they did and enjoyed it. They made what we did fun. That's all that really matters, not a state championship or winning a relay. But a team of guys who were united because of two coaches.

There will be more coaches with better teams but no duo such as the one we've witnessed the past two years will ever be repeated in greatness. Thank you from all the swimmers.

Senior Nick McCarty practices his dives before the big State meet. 8 boys qualified for State this year.

Junior David Light is prepared to dive in at practice. The Varsity team practices Monday through Friday at 6 a.m. till 7 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. till 6 p.m. also Saturdays from 9 till 12.

All the girls work extra hard and try to make it their best year. With only one senior on the team, the team won't change as much but will a little at the same time.

Go Sara! Junior Sara Shoenberg gives it her best and all her meets. Shoenberg loves to run and does it sometimes during free time. Her father also coaches the girls team.

Junior Jodi Harding stretches before a while. Harding has been running since 8th grade. "I like running. It relaxes me. Something I like to do" said Harding.

How many of us just run whenever they're bored? Or to get all your stress out?

Sophomore Jodi Harding does.

"I always liked to run. It just relaxes me. Something I like to do."

Cross County is a long distance run "We go about 4-5 miles a day".

"The different between boys and girls is boys go longer distance. We sometimes practice together and combine the team but we're not at the same meets".

Harding had one of the best scores on the fitness test in all P.E. classes.

"She's Hoovers best. She ran lots of miles. She's enjoying hard work rewards" said Coach Pete.

"Jody is like gravity. A constant force" said captain senior Myra Gottl. "She's awesome. I admire her a lot. She works her butt off at practice and then runs home. She makes me work a lot harder"

"I look up to Myra. Some girls it's their first year and they've been doing really well".

The girls practice Mon-Fri after school and Sunday at 7 p.m.

"Monday we go to someones house and have pasta for dinner. We like eating pasta before meets" said Harding.

"We try to eat less junk food and more healthy food. Before you run it's bad to drink water. You have to do it an hour before".

"A bunch of people ask me why i run. I feel like I'm gonna be running even when I'm an adult. It's a part of me" said Harding.

The girls goof off during a pictures take at their meet. Before meets on Mon. the girls like to go to someones house and eat pasta. Part of the tradition.

Run hard! Emily Light gives it her all at a meet. Go Emily!!!

Senior Brett Kline worries about the meets and cheers the boys on. Kline is known as the lead on the team.

The score is very important in every meet. The boys and girls cheer each other on to make each other faster.

Working hard!

The boys sweat to win the meet. They run 6-7 miles on daily bases for practice.

WHILE THE REST OF US ARE AT HOME GETTING READY FOR A GOOD BOUT OF TELEVISION THESE KIDS ARE WARMING UP FOR A 6-MILES RUN. YEAH SIX MILES ISN'T MUCH WHEN YOU'RE IN YOUR CAR BUT TO RUN THAT YOU GOT TO BE KIDDING.

While the rest of us are at home getting ready for a good bout of television these kids are warming up for a 6-mile run.

Yeah six miles isn't much when you're in your car but to run that you got to be kidding.

While there are 17 runners on this team all competing against each other they find a way to friendly compete while trying to beat the other person.

"Even though we all wanna win we cheer on our team mates to do the best we can," senior Eric Emley said. Everyone has an unspoken relationship with senior Brett Cline. While not being the fastest runner he is still the pack leader.

"I admire the younger runners that can beat me like Mike Sinklier and Pete Schoneberg," Cline said.

"A lot of underclassmen have really stepped up from last year.

They work hard and have worked hard this summer," junior Alex Mason said.

The real prodigy however is eight grader Pete Schoneberg, he out run's all the varsity team.

Why would an eight grader join a high school team anyway?

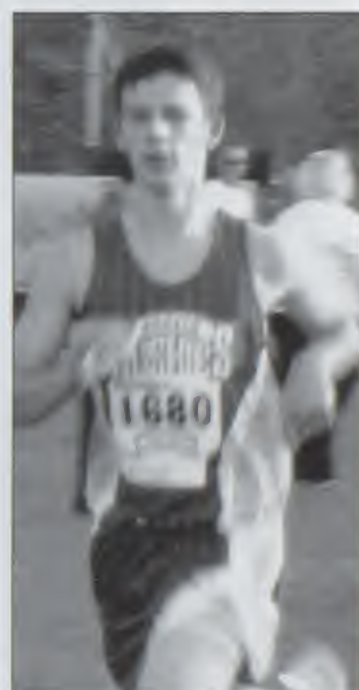

"My reason for joining CC is I get to eat as much pasta as I can." Schoneberg confessed. Cross Country members get to eat all the pasta they can because it provides them with helpful carbohydrates.

Bottom row left to right is Alex Mason, Ted Glynn, Brett Cline, Eric Emley, and Michael Sinklier.

BUNT TO BUMP
THE VOLLEYBALL TEAM IS NOT ONLY PLAYING THE GAME, BUT SHOWING THE MEREDITH TEAM HOW IT'S DONE.

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY MEGHAN WILLIAMS

After coming from the Meredith volleyball program some players still thought a bump (The use of joined forearms to pass or set a ball in an underhand manner) was a bunt (baseball term for a small hit).

For years the Meredith program has been run by Community Adult Education. Math teacher and volleyball coach Megan Smith has been wanting to take over the program. "We have always been wanting to be in charge," Smith said.

Although this is what they've wanted, it's a lot of extra work. The Meredith teams were coached from 3:15-4:15. From 4:15-6 the Hoover team had their practice. Smith is coaching 3:15-6 Monday-Friday, two nights a week of games and teaching. It was a lot of extra work, "but it was fun," Smith said.

"They really learned more positioning and learned the game," Smith said.

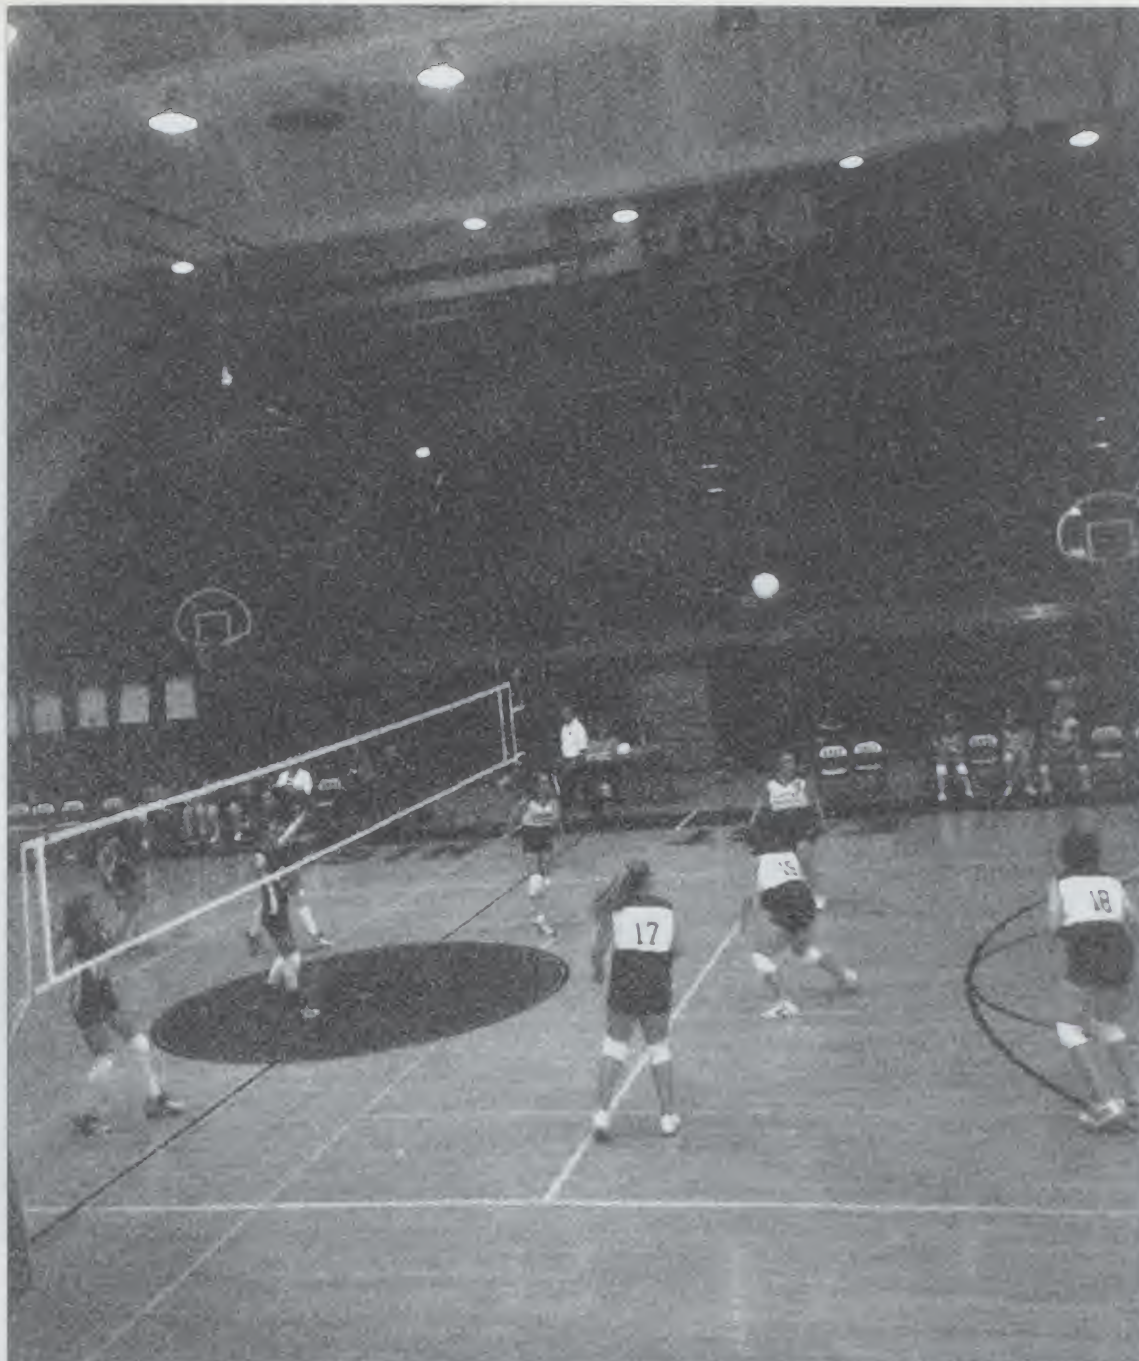

Sophomore Megan Skinner has played volleyball since the 7th grade. As an experienced player Skinner thought that coaching the Meredith team was a help to the teams future.

"I like being able to show them What I've learned," Skinner said.

Sophomore Stephanie Dickinson, senior Jessica Wilson, senior Laura Briggs, sophomore Megan Skinner, and sophomore Nicole Nelson wait for there game to start. Wilson and Briggs are the only two seniors that went out for the team.

Sophomore Katy Thompson goes for the bump. Although the team lost all of there games, they had a good team and made a difference in the lives of middle school volleyball players.

Why No Uniforms?

- Des Moines Public Schools policy for ordering uniforms changed. You must now have all the money before anything can be ordered.

- Fundraisers done by the cheerleaders were not finished, so there wasn't enough money in their account.

Why are our cheerleaders wearing old football jerseys and sweatpants to games?

JACI UZZO

In the midst of a football game you notice you don't hear the loud yells of the cheerleaders. Instead, they are all huddled together trying to keep warm. Why, you may ask since in the past they have always been warm and cheerful. It's because they don't have any uniforms or warm- ups.

"It makes me mad we don't have uniforms after all that time we spent fundraising," senior Co-captain Jenna Kollings said. "Our coach is the one who messed up and we look bad and have to suffer for her mistakes."

"This year the policy for ordering uniforms has changed so that there has to be money in the account before an order can be made." Activities Director Dan McClannahan said. "The fundraiser wasn't finished last year, so there wasn't enough money to order the uniforms to get here by the first of the year."

"For fundraisers we got money from the Husky Pups clinics, the Meredith clinics, we sold items at games and we had one big fundraiser at the end of the year. That's where we got most of our money." Cheerleading Coach Natalie Graziano- Davis said. "We didn't have enough money because a lot of the girls didn't do the fundraiser at the end of the year. We really needed that because the other fundraisers were small amounts."

"We gave the girls shorts and t-shirts to give them a uniform look. I'm not happy about it, but with everything that's happened we did the best we could do to make them look good." Graziano- Davis said.

"The Warrior Inside"

You can wound the warrior but can deny the fighter.

The fire still burns inside.

Everytime my team has victory denied.

Knowing I can not stop the score from climbing.

But would give anything to get the chance.

To do my job one last time.

My body will heal but the time I lost will never be mine.

And wonder will always be entering my mind.

Would it have made a difference if that play was mine.

Time flies when having fun but seems frozen when left behind.

It burns when I see defeat in my comrades eyes.

Not being able to help makes me scream inside.

And seeing my reflection of my self brings a tear to my eye.

Knowing quiet well what person I lost inside.

It seems as if the pain will never end!

But like I said you can wound the warrior but my fight will never end!

Because it's not my nature to give in, and contain the fury I have within.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM WORKED HARD THIS YEAR. THEY DIDN'T PROMISE HOW MANY GAMES THEIR GOING TO WIN, ALL THEY DID PROMISE IS TO GET BETTER EVERYDAY.

Page design and story by Jill Rosenberger

23 freshman, 40 varsity members, 12 coaches, 10 managers, 1 athletic trainer 86 people total.

The football team has more than that, they have pride.

"We have to have pride in the school, Hoover is a good school. Pride still has to matter." head coach Brian Tate said.

The year the football team is doing a lot to improve. In the off season they did weight lifting, running/agility drills, Bigger, Faster, Stronger (BFS), stretch and conditioning clinics, seven-on-seven scrimmage, Camp Dodge and South Dakota Camps, as well as being involved in other sports.

"I think they are improving knowing what they can do, and getting it done." Activities Director Dan McClannahan said.

This years seniors were conference champs their sophomore year.

"At the time it was the best feeling in the world being a coach. The kids put in a long season." Scott Houser, varsity coach said.

Their junior year they had no off season work, lost players and changed coaches.

"I'm disappointed, I think the seniors could have had a better senior year. It will be sad to see them go, I have special ties to that group." Houser said.

They are improving every day, every week and after every game. They are learning new lessons in the game and in life.

"I want the kids to have fun, learn to play as a team, work hard for success and victories to come out of this season," said McClannahan.

Making Their Mark!

Boys struggle mentally to perfect the unperfected game. With golf it's a struggle mentally," senior Curt Chenoweth said.

Would you ever want to try to perfect something that could never be perfected? Well, sophomore Jack Newman and Senior Curt Chenoweth would.

That is the reason why they've been playing golf for such a long time.

Newman has been playing for 11 years and Chenoweth for seven.

So how does golf differ from other sports?

"For example, in basketball its endurance, and in golf its more of a mental game," Newman said.

"With golf its an individual sport and its a struggle mentally," Chenoweth said.

Chenoweth and Newman are great leaders on the team, along with senior Jason Owen who is ranked second.

DUE TO RECENT BUDGET CUTS THE GOLF TEAM HAS NOW JOINED TEAMS WITH THE ROOSEVELT GOLF TEAM. THEY ALSO HAVE A NEW COACH.

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY CARRIE LAIDLAW

Golf this year is taking a whole new swing! Due to the budget cuts for school our golf team has now joined teams together with the Roosevelt Roughriders golf team.

"We don't get to play much on varsity because the Roosevelt players are really good," senior Laura Briggs said. She is one of the four players from Hoover on the Hoover/Roosevelt golf team. She has been involved for two years. "One of my friends told me I should join the team so I did," Briggs said.

"I don't like the combine because our team was really close," junior Lawrell Birk said. Birk has been part of the golf team for three years. She got involved because her parents are really into golf.

They practice together at Waveland Golf Course every day except on Fridays and when they have meets.

"Before the match we stretch because we carry a 40 pound bag for about three miles. It's really good exercise," Birk said.

"I practice putting and practice my swing before our matches," Briggs said.

Another thing new to the team is the coach. "He is very optimistic and that helps make it fun. He is also always there to help us out," Birk said.

"Our new coach helps us out a lot more and he makes it really fun," Briggs said.

Hopefully all this change is for good.

Just Kickin' It

Page design and story by blair parker

“My least favorite part of practice are doing suicides,” senior varsity co-captain Briana Dreyer said.

To gear up for the soccer season the girls had to do a lot of physical training to help them prepare for the intense hour and half to two hours long games. A month before the daily practices the team does captain practices.

“There are just practices that the coaches don’t attend, but the captain run it,” freshman Kelli Shaffner said.

“Captain practices are a couple times a week and we do different exercises,” junior Ashlee Wilson said.

Then after the month the real deal starts. Form running, sprinting, and building strength in the legs is apart of the daily exercises. Some of the girls dislike the running and gruesome exercises, but the hard work and dedication pays off when the girls enjoy play the game.

“I enjoy playing the game and being with the girls,” Wilson said.

“I enjoy kicking it with the girls and getting to know everyone,” Dreyer said.

Along with the training and the exercising experts say it is important to eat healthy. Some of the girls think that eating healthy helps, but others don’t think so. There are those that are addicted to the pizza, burgers, and pop.

“I eat healthy food like chicken and toast,” senior varsity co-captain Allison Kjellberg said.

With the new coach Chris Faidley, the boys soccer is making big improvements. "He (Faidley) set goals for us so we all know what he expects," junior Drew Neal said.

This is Neal's third year on varsity and he's played soccer since he was eleven.

Another returning varsity player is Reece Dooley. Dooley started playing soccer at the age of five and has been playing for Hoover all four years on varsity. Dooley said his goal was to win the conference if they don't beat Lincoln then he wants to at least get to the sub-state championship game.

Sead Sinanovic, first year JV player said he is looking forward to playing Roosevelt because "they are the hardest to beat". Sinanovic has played soccer for seven years. "He (Josh Griffith, the new assistant coach) helps us to work on things we need to work on like passing mostly," Sinanovic said.

A lot of guys said that big crowds are important because it makes them play harder. "I enjoy the crowds because it makes you wanna win more to prove to the fans that came out to see us," Dooley said. All the guys get along pretty well.

They play practical jokes on each other when traveling on the bus. "If you fall asleep on the bus you get your hair pulled or someone would snap the rubber bands and stuff like that," Neal said. "I think Brett Kline is a good leader. He really knows the game and is really encouraging. He's all around a good guy," Neal said.

NEW COACH MARY THOMPSON PUSHES GIRLS TO THEIR PEAK, BUT NOT WITHOUT GOOD INTENTIONS.

Page design and story by alyssa tappes

The softball team has yet another coach this year. Mary Thompson, the third coach in the past four year, has high hopes for her team. "She always has new ideas and is always thinking about the team," senior Jessica Gibbons said. Gibbons has been playing softball at Hoover for four years and has seen many changes through the different coaches.

Thompson is trying to give all the girls a fair chance to play. She keeps track of who shows up and who works hard at practices. "We've been working our butts off at practice," Gibbons said. Conditioning began one month prior to practices, but now that practices have began, there is a lot of running, new drills for specific positions, and of course more and more conditioning.

Thompson also has a new assistant coach, Dave Streffler. Both coaches run all of the drills with the team. "They always tell us that there's nothing we can do that they can't," Gibbons said. Thompson and Streffler run drills with the girls and even run right along side them.

The coaches also have big goals for the team. They plan on upsetting a lot of big teams. Thompson was a coach at Lincoln before, which is our "arch rival". Although they have never beaten them, it's always been a very close game.

Thompson wants the seniors to show leadership and give the underclassmen someone to look up to. Thompson promises to have a big year for softball, and hopefully go to state. She tries to keep the girls involved as much as possible. "This is a great experience for the girls. They'll always remember this, especially this year," Gibbons said.

The girls gather around Thompson during a practice. Although there are not many girls on the team, there are a lot of incoming freshman that will help take over.

Sophomores Ivy Rohwing, Kailey Fucaloro, and senior Alicia Baker warm up before practice. Baker has been in softball all four years of high school.

Sophomore Isabel Valdez and Freshman Margaux Haines listen to directions given by assistant coach Dave Streffler about important bating techniques.

OUR TRACK TEAMS THIS YEAR WHILE NOT WINNING STATE SEEM TO ENJOY THE OVERALL EXPERIENCE OF TRACK.

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY MICHAEL STOLTZE

To most this is just another sport that you have no interest in. It doesn't have near as many followers as basketball or football even though our football team is not the best in existence. However, when facts come in, our track team isn't the best in the world. "We suck," junior Jory Ringler said. "We all have lots of fun though especially the cake run".

This cake run intrigued me, as I had no idea how a cake could run, so with more investigation junior Matt Potraz and Ringler illuminated me. "The cake run is when all the fat throwers at the end of the year do sprints and the winner gets a cake". Basically sounds like a good laugh and a good time for the boys track team.

The boys have it different from the girls this year though. The boys have plenty of runners and throwers because they had a large turnout. Girls are having the lowest turnout they have ever had. When I visited these running

Huskies, I counted less than 15. Unless I can't count right, that makes for one small team.

Having fewer players does effect the performance of the girls. "With so few girls this year I have to put the same girls in more events. Long distance runners are going to have to run a few runs which can quickly wear them out, thereby effecting their performance," coach Cindy Harland said.

Junior Cherie Mayes was concerned that this would happen when all the new girls first came. "Not many girls came out this year compared to last, and lots end up quitting anyway," Mayes said.

So while the girls are concentrating on just filling the roster the boys are trying to score up some victories. "I think even though our team is small we are a good group of girls. We cheer for each other and just plain work hard," Mayes said.

No matter how it turns up though the track team will still be around next year for new recruits to show up. And judging that the Meredith team easily doubled both our girls and boys I think our track team will start to pick up.

Coach Pete summons the team into a huddle. They discuss the meet coming up.

Junior Cherie Mayes walks back to the start of the track. The team had just got done running a quarter of a mile.

Junior Jory Ringler smiles at the camera during warm ups. Many track players are able to turn warm up into fun.

Michael Sinclair, Pete Schoneberg, and Michael Stevens. They are neck and neck on the last sprint of the mile run.

Junior Tamika Hilson runs a 200 meter sprint. Girls track has many sprints for there team including long distance runners.

THIS YEAR THE CHEERLEADERS ARE DOING SOMETHING NEW. USUALLY WHEN THE BASKETBALL SEASON IS OVER THE CHEERLEADERS TAKE A BREAK BUT THIS YEAR THEY WILL JUST KEEP ON GOING AND CHEER THE SOCCER PLAYERS ON.

PAGE AND STORY BY SANITA ZULIC

Above: Freshman Margaux Haines doing a stunt at the boys soccer game. This is the first year that we've had soccer cheerleaders. Their coach Andrea Eustice noted that "the girls are very excited about the season" and clearly you can see in the photo they are enjoying themselves.

Below: Practice, Practice, Practice. The cheer squad is once again at it. They practice everyday after school at 3:30.

As the basketball season is over the cheerleaders hang up their pompons and chill out until, for those who make it at the tryouts, football season. But this year the things have been tossed around a little bit and maybe for the better. The girls are giving soccer cheerleading a try. "There's 12 girls on the squad and they're only cheering for the boys varsity team right now," coach Andrea Eustice said.

"The girls are very excited about the season," Eustice said. Well okay but why have cheerleaders at a soccer game? "We just thought that the soccer players needed cheerleaders too and someone to pump them up so we decided to try it," Eustice said. Well what about the girls what do they really think?

"It's fun to be there, we all cheer for varsity at home and away games," freshman Margaux Haines said. Okay, cheerleaders like it, but what about the players and the coaches: how are they adjusting to the changes?

"I think the cheerleaders bring a lot to the fans, before when we played the fans seemed to be a lot quieter and now they're louder and they seem a lot more involved in the game," assistant coach Josh Griffith said. What about the players; how are they taking it? After all, it is something new that's brought to the field aside from the coaches. "It's fun to have them there but we don't really notice them there they are there mostly for the fans," senior Mitch Smith said.

It seems the girls are having fun and they are pumping the fans up and the soccer team enjoys their presence. And it's paying off, just looking at the team's record so far; they're 5-5 "I wouldn't say that the cheerleaders really help us win, but I would definitely say that they are the team's lucky charm," Faidley said. All's well in the soccer world.

Okay, so, cheer coach happy? Check. Cheerleaders happy? Check. Soccer players and coaches happy? Check.

THE GIRLS HAD A AMAZING YEAR. NOT ONLY DID THEIR POINTS FLY HIGH BUT SO DID THEIR TEAM WORK AND PRIDE.

Page design and story by Jill rosenberger

It took twenty years, but the girls finally accomplished their goal and made it to state. The girls had an amazing year with 19 wins and taking second place in their conference they gained the respect and attention they deserved "The athletes and coaches work hard for successful seasons and the proof that hard work pays off came to the surface in 2004." Activities Director Dan McClannahan said. Although it took a lot of dedication and hard work to get there. In the off season the girls attended camps, lifted weights and had shooting drills. Once the season started they had intense practices that involved running/shooting drills, lifting more weights and watching game tapes. "Sometimes it is smooth as silk and other times it is organized chaos it depends on the mood of the girls, but nine out of ten times it is intense." Coach Boston said. All the sweat, blood and moments of exhaustion paid off when the girls beat Fort Dodge and Sioux City East sub-state games. The senior dominated team and Coach Boston, Coach Ross and Coach Peterson worked for four years to get into the state tournament.

"These are the girls I started with, there is a lot of emotion with them and I want nothing but the best for them." Haywood Boston said. Getting to state was a big deal because the girls basketball team had been absent for a long time. "It was a different experience something I haven't done before and something I will never do again, it made me feel really special to be a part of it." Amanda Ricke said. "I am really proud to be a part of this program." Once the girls played and beat Iowa City High it was on to play Ankeny for the semifinals. "It was really exciting getting ready to play and it was great to see so many fans come out and support us." Kelly Meade said. "We worked so hard all four years and everything came together and made it all worth while. It was a lot of fun." The girls unfortunately lost to the future state champs." It was disappointing to lose but it was such an exciting season and I'm glad we got to end it at the state tournament." Meade said. "These are my girls, I may bark a lot but win or lose they know I love them." Coach Boston said.

Passed just in time. Senior Alicia Baker passes the ball at the base line while is guarded by Ankeny. "As freshman we were a little scrappy and we had to learn how to play together. We worked hard for four years. It was important to us, to make it to state as seniors." Alicia Baker said.

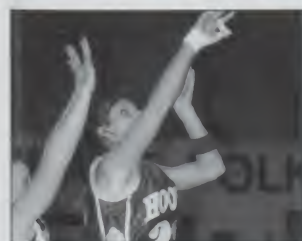

"It was a really exciting year and making it to state made all the hard work pay off. It was fun and I am really going to miss playing and my teammates."

Kelly Meade

"Coach Boston had us working hard during the off season and that showed during the regular season and with out that we wouldn't have made it to state. Everyone is going to miss this years basketball team."

Maria Valdez

"This season was awesome. I got a chance to become close to my teammates through good and bad times and making it to Vets made it even better. I am really going to miss all the good times and funny girls!"

THE VARSITY BOYS BASKETBALL TEAM TOOK ON NEW CHALLENGES THIS YEAR. THEY HAD A NEW COACH AND A YOUNG TEAM, BUT ALL THEY REALLY WANTED TO DO WAS PLAY BASKETBALL.

The boy's basketball team took on many new challenges this year. They had a new coach, a young team and last years 3rd place state ranking to live up to. "I'm pleased with how the team did this year, they could have done better, but I was pleased. I really saw the team progress," head coach Charles Zanders said.

Having so many young players on the team could be difficult for an older player, but senior Mike Wright doesn't think so. "It's great working with people who have so much potential," Wright said. But these young players are tough. "The older guys sometimes call me soft and pick on me sometimes, but I just don't listen to them and give my all to help the team," freshman Crasuan King said.

Head Coach Charles Zanders took a step in a different direction this year. Last year he was assistant coach to the varsity team and head coach of the sophomore team, but this year he has stepped up to be head coach of the varsity team.

Sophomores John Maahs and Joe Muldoon talk about the game on the bench. Maahs and Muldoon were both sophomores that played on the sophomore team as well as the varsity team.

"Coaching varsity is different than sophomore because there is a lot more responsibility, but this is my dream job," Zanders said. The team really seems to enjoy having him for a coach.

"Coach Z has been my coach since seventh grade, he's wonderful and I want him to know I love him," King said.

Although Zanders is coaching a supposedly older varsity team, he still has many young players. "The young kids are great, I see so much potential in them," Zanders said. John Maahs, Tremaine Brown, Joe Muldoon, Raymond Miller, and Jack Newman are all varsity players, but they are also underclassmen. Michael Wright, Zahir Bachalini, and Herbie White are the lone seniors this year. "It's different being the only senior, my whole high school career I've looked up to a lot of different people, now I see myself in the younger guys shoes," Wright said.

THE BOYS TENNIS TEAM THIS YEAR STRUGGLES TO FILL ITS ROSTER WHILE THE GIRLS HAS AN OVERFLOWING AMOUNT.

FUTURE OF TeNnIs

The boys and girls tennis team are on a roll. They go to practice every day like every other sport. They work hard during practice like every other sport. But the one difference is they don't seem to brag like every other sport.

"We're bad" senior Jason Owen said. While they have about 15 guys on the team, its believed they will only going to win one game this season. "We beat north and might beat east, but we won't win anymore," Owen said.

While the team is not doing great, Owen is undefeated as of now. "I wont go undefeated the whole season, I have a tough match against Ames coming up and State...I hope just to make it" Owen said.

That also underlies the real problem coming up for the boys tennis team. They are losing seven players this year and by next year they probably wont be able to fill a varsity team. Which means with cuts in the schools teams are going to join.

The girls on the other hand are doing great. They have about 30 players and are on a roll.

"We are improving but, only average," sophomore Kim Alex said. With the addition of a big freshman class our girls team is set to become a major player in future years.

They have a new coach this year: Central Campus monitor Scott Noah. He is implementing some new policies and leading the girls into a bright future.

Senior John Munoz wrestles a Roosevelt wrestler. This meet was held at North High School.

Freshman Kenyon Murphy gets flipped over at the meet. He is in the lightweight division.

Aren't those stairs leading to the boys locker room from the pool area work to climb? Well the wrestling squad runs stairs every practice many, many times. "We run up those stairs at the end of our practice, it's a pain," senior Lloyd Brown said. Wrestling kids from both Hoover and North practice together. Budget decisions have left many school teams grouped together.

That doesn't bother the team, they see this as a better chance of winning. "I love wrestling and getting aggressive and all the motivation," senior John Munoz said.

With a workout like they have it's no wonder they have a chance.

First they start out with a jog, stretch, do agility's "increasing there ability" and stretch again. They next move over to drills such as Ironman. Ironman not only sounds like the hardest part of their workout it is.

"In Ironman we have kids constantly wrestling each other getting no break, and if you happen to get lucky and not thrown in you have to jump rope instead", Brown said. After that excruciating workout they get to top it out with running up those stairs.

That's the wrestling kid's workout there now for there diet. These diets all vary from wrestler to wrestler.

"Actually there is no set diet, we are allowed to eat what we want. Coach does say we should avoid fast food though," Brown said. "We burn it off at practice so it doesn't really matter."

Wrestling is this way and it has all been influenced by the addition of a girl to there team. Chelsea Rail has been added to the wrestling team. Wrestling has usually been a guy's sport but I view this as a good turn of events. Maybe in the future there will be separate girls and boys wrestling teams, or at least still a wrestling team.

Senior Randy Stokely shakes the hand of a Roosevelt wrestler. Hoover almost won that meet.

What It Takes

WHAT IT TAKES FOR A GIRL TO GET READY FOR HOMECOMING.
BETTER YET THE DIFFERENCE IN PREPERATION FOR A SENIOR AND A FRESHMAN

You know how people wonder what the difference is between a senior girl and a freshman girl getting ready for Homecoming?

No? Me neither, but we're all about to find out.

For senior Sarah Hudson it should be no sweat, but for freshman Alma Cocic it's her first high school dance. Wonder what it'll be like for her?

"It can be pretty fun," Hudson said. "My favorite one was last year's 'Studio 54'," she said.

Hudson has gone to Homecoming with her girlfriends for the last three years

"It's nice to go with a date but it's a lot less stressful to go without a date," Hudson said, "when you don't have to worry about boutinners and stuff."

Her favorite part of Homecoming is "getting ready before the dance with friends" she said, "it's just fun to help each other get ready and see how cute everyone looks," Hudson said.

Switch to the freshman Alma Cocic; she likes Hoover so far and she, unlike Hudson, is going with a date.

Stress?

"None at all it was fun" Cocic said, "better that the eighth-grade dance decorations were better and there was a lot more people and we were the youngest there and it was longer."

So there you have it, whether you like it or not, you just found out what it takes for two different girls to get ready for the same event.

"Don't worry about dates for Homecoming, it's really more fun to go with your girlfriends. Winter Formal and Prom are better dances to go with dates because they are more formal," Hudson said.

'Tis the SeAsOn

FOR STUDENTS OF ALL SEASONS AND WINTER FORMAL

Page design and story by Emma Berry

In years past, there has been one Student of All Seasons, but this year, with 35 nominees, there will be five elected Students of All Seasons. Also, underclassmen do not have a representative from their grades this year.

"It was a nice surprise to be nominated," senior Scott Bell said. "I wasn't too concerned about it," senior Alex Whitten said, "but it is still cool."

"I really wanted to be nominated, so when I heard my name on the list, I was really excited!" senior Laura Briggs said.

The nominees are chosen based on grades, classroom performance, school involvement and leadership ability. Basically, students need to be active as well as smart to be nominated.

"I like to participate in Quiz Bowl, NHS, Jazz Band, Concert Band and ROTC, but I'd have to say that ROTC is my favorite," Whitten said, "I had to cut some activities this year because I was worn down from everything."

"I am involved with the Best Buddies program, NHS, Girls Golf, Boys Basketball Manager, Bowling Team and Volleyball," Briggs said.

Even though the award might seem like a kind of popularity contest, students would still prefer the Student of All Seasons award over having a King and Queen.

"I like the award because you have to be smart to be nominated and the students don't get to choose the nominees," Briggs said.

"The award is a nice change from kings and queens," Bell said, "it is something different and I have never heard of any other school having an award like this."

But, like all awards, each student knows someone who they would like to see win the award from the Class of 2004.

"If it were up to me, I would choose Kelly Meade," Briggs said, "she is really smart and nice. Not to mention very athletic."

"I think that Randy Stokely should be the Student of All Seasons for no particular reason except that he's an all around good guy," Bell said.

"My vote would be for Mitch Smith," Whitten said, "He's a great athlete and a very good student."

Student Of All Seasons winners flocked to the center of the gym to decide which class will receive the Spirit Stick. Winners are seniors Brian 'B.K.' King, Mitch Smith, Micheal Wright, Maria Valdez and Kelly Meade.

THE GIRLS ASKED THE BOYS AND THE BOYS WORRIED ABOUT HAVING DATES AT THE SADIE HAWKINS DANCE. BUT IT DIDN'T TURN OUT HOW STUDENTS EXPECTED.

Many boys were excited about the Sadie Hawkins dance. A chance for the girls to get the courage to ask them and best of all, of course, the girls make the plans and pay. Student Council has been working very hard for 2 years to get the Sadie Hawkins dance organized.

"Last year we just didn't have the time we needed to get it ready," said Senior Class President Mitch Smith, "We believed that tradition is made to be broken and we're the demolition crew."

"We wanted to give the students a chance to just come and hang out," said student body Vice-president Curt Chenoweth. "Also, it's a great way to raise money for Post Prom."

"I went because it was something new and different," said junior Rachel Millard. Millard asked her boyfriend Austin Carr.

"There weren't very many people there. We mostly just mingled," Carr. said

"We're undecided on our plans for next year," Chenoweth said. "It took us awhile to plan. We worked on it for a couple weeks. We had to find a DJ, karaoke, design tickets and decorate."

"Next year hopefully we can promote better and get more student input," Chenoweth,said."The students asked for another dance and STUCO provided one. There's nothing we can do to satisfy everyone."

Seniors Brandon Birk, Bryan King have a good time with their dates Juniors Sara Schoenberg and Sarah Stearns. The gym is set up for students to dance with chairs on the side so they can rest their tired feet.

Prom. Awww... finally the biggest most expensive long awaited dance came and gone on May 1 at the downtown Holiday Inn's spinning room.

Wait a minute... is that Torrey Sample? Is she in a tux? Yeah, she was and she was proud of it. Torrey was the only female wearing what is traditionally a guy's attire.

"I hate dresses I find them restrictive and tuxes are comfortable. It's like when you're a little kid and you dress up, there are so many colors to chose from" Senior Torrey Sample said.

Not only did Torrey look in-style, she arrived in it. She won a free six person limousine; it was white, had a moon roof and leather seats. Sample brought along sophomore Josie Gerriets, just as friends, because she knew she would have fun with other people in the limousine and she thought a sophomore needed to go to prom.

"Riding in the limo was quite an adventure" Gerriets said.

As a sophomore Gerriets had a lot of fun. She has a lot of upper classmen friends and she was glad she got to share this special time with them.

"I thought it was really nice atmosphere, lots of fun. People felt free to hang out." Gerriets said.

Sample only got positive compliments on her tux. Such as; 'hey you look cool,' 'you look handsome' or 'thats a good color on you.'

"It was good because if I spent that kind of money and didn't look good, I'd be angry," Sample said.

Torrey felt most comfortable in a tux and she was not worried about what others would say although there was always a possibility someone might.

"If I wanted to shock people I would have wore a fancy dress," Sample said.

And for what others thought of her choice?

"Torrey brings about awareness of different lifestyles in a fun way without being in your face about , and because of that we've learned to appreciate the unique and creative young woman she is," science teacher Miriam Woods said.

"I thought it was her decision. I thought it was great, as long as she is comfortable," Gerriets said. The things Torrey thinks are essential for prom night are; being surrounded by good friends, wearing something comfortable, good food, good music and wanting to have fun.

"Don't take prom too seriously, make sure you're around people that want to have fun, and the more you relax ,the more fun you will have" Sample said.

"I thought prom was a great time because Mr. Koch brought his own silverware!" Senior Cory Eustice said.

CASINO NIGHT AND MAY DAY. POST PROM WAS FULL OF LOTS OF GAMES, FOOD AND GOOD TIMES. POST PROM TURNED OUT HUGE SUCCESS!

Post Prom was started to prevent students going out and "doing bad" things after prom.

The Friday before prom student council started the fifteen-minute program stating that every fifteen minutes statically a person dies from an alcohol related accident.

"The program was set up to help at least one student decide not to drink and drive, if it helped at least one person it was worth it" Student Council Member junior Ashley Douglas.

The themes of post prom were casino night and May Day. People got to play games and win fake money then use the money to win prizes. There were poles (game played on May 1 or May Day) in the middle of each student center. The gym was turned into a miniature casino with games such as poker, black jack and craps.

"I spent 90 percent of my time at black jack tables because I rule black jack, muhahaha" Senior Torrey Sample said.

What students do not see is all the hard work the parents put into making post prom fun and enjoyable for everyone. The parents work all year to raise funds, gather prizes and get volunteers. The prizes were geared toward things students need for college.

Some prizes won were Televisions, a x-box, piece of carpet, gift certificates, blenders, and a coffee maker. Also, everyone that attended left with a gift bag.

"The trick is starting early" said Prom committee member Andrea Eustice "I thought it was very successful, I hope the kids had a good time at least I hope they did. I hope next year is more successful and the year after that." Eustice said

The prom committee already has changes in mind. Such as only having a few things to eat instead of a smorgasbord and by offering more, smaller prizes so that everyone receives a prize equal in value.

"Post prom was a lot of fun because it was something different to do" Junior Christie Kafer.

NFL watchout! Although senior Jon Bethards (above) was not a kicker on the football team, he gives it a try. Carefull Jon don't fall.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON! HOW THE CAST OF DUDE WHERE'S MY GOAT? COPEs WITHOUT DENNIS HILDRETH.

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY ALYSSA TAPPS

Dude, where's my...goat? It was only supposed to be a joke, but would soon be the title of the fall play. "Dude Where's My Goat?", performed October 9-11, was well into production. Rehearsals were going smoothly and everyone was getting their lines memorized.

On the night of September 9, Denis Hildreth was leaving through the north doors of the building, forgetting that the parking lot was fenced in. Using his Spider-Man instincts, he attempted to jump the fence. Unfortunately, Hildreth is no Spider-Man. He ended up going to the hospital and had broken his foot in three places. The only Spider sense he had left was his tingling sense.

Opening night of the play was less than a month away. What would happen without the key director? Enter...Mark Rixner.

For the cast, there were good and bad things that Rixner brought to the production. "He doesn't yell as much," sophomore Gillum Kyker said. Although there was a change of directors, Kyker feels that the play will "be just dandy".

And "just dandy" it was. The crowd was falling out of their chairs laughing. There were jokes that satisfied everyone's sense of humor.

We Can Spell Decathlon...

ACADEMIC DECATHLON GOES TO STATE.

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY EMMA BERRY

"We can spell decathlon, can you?"

This is the motto of the Academic Decathlon team that has gone to state three years in a row.

"Most of the time, people spell decathlon wrong," librarian Pam Pilcher said. "They like to add an extra 'a' in between the 'h' and the 'l' to spell decathalon."

But their numbers are dropping. They started the year with 18 students; enough people for two full teams, but ended the year with only 12 participants — nine on the team and three alternates.

In Academic Decathlon, a team is made up of nine people. Any extras are alternates that only go to competitions if a team member can not participate.

The teams then get together and study the information they are given that they will be quizzed on in competitions.

"This was a bad year for us," Pilcher said. "I can't even remember what place we got at state."

At the state competition, there were 12 large schools total that competed. Maybe next year the academic decathlon team will do even better and make it to state again for a fourth year in a row.

“It was nerve wrecking because everyone had to wait on you for your lines.”

The Dark of the moon brings demons and devils onstage and off. Just one week before opening night there was a major adjustment: Junior David Wilier is dismissed from the production and director Dennis Hildreth has to replace his role, but who? Freshman Gray Lovelace, freshman Jacob Hestbech, sophomore Danny Gooding, sophomore David Bicket, and freshman Mark Solinger all audition for the part. So, received the major role of Marvin Hudgens, the big strong guy that is madly love with Barbara Allen (played by Stephanie Fravel)? Freshman Mark Solinger snagged the role.

“My original part was a towns person that didn't have an individual speaking part,” Solinger said.

Solinger only had seven days to learn the part and from there the pressure was on. At first, the part was really hard for him, but the lines and memorizing became a little lighter for him. However, he had to find the time to practice. He would finish most of his work in class, practice during drama class, and between scenes with the help of senior Trisha Dorhn.

Nevertheless how did the cast feel about the change?

“Some people were nervous, like people that had scenes with him. They were afraid that they would have to feed him the lines,” senior Ryan Stearns said.

“I thought he wasn't going to learn his lines,” senior Stephanie Fravel said.

Opening night had approached fast and it was time to see the how well the pressure, hard work, and determination pay off. Solinger was excited and nervous about performing. He especially looked forward to Saturday's performance because he would have done the play twice and those two performances would sort of been like practices for him. So, how was the newcomer's performance?

“I t was good and I was pleasantly surprised in his favor,” junior Bethany Hall said.

“I thought he did a good job for the amount of time he was given,” senior Brandon Birk said.

“I t felt good to have a major role because everyone else is a senior and it felt good to work with the older kids,” Solinger said.

So Much Drama

THE DRAMA DEPARTMENT WORKS HARD EVERY YEAR TO PREPARE FOR THEIR PARTICULAR ACTS.

Students may change their makeup, hairstyle, and clothing in order to become someone else.

For drama students, it's a reality every time they walk on stage.

"I love drama, and its fun to entertain, and be somebody else," senior Torrey Sample said. Every year the drama department brings new and exciting acts. Ongoing traditions are the Senior One Acts. Drama director Dennis Hildreth chooses seniors to direct short plays (that are 20 to 30 minutes' acts chosen by a senior).

"When you're in advance drama dedication is involved, and the directors looks for these students that are able to direct and work with people," Sample said.

New things happen every year with the drama department.

"The difference from this year to last would be the new approaches from different people, and it's always interesting to see students use their creativity," Sample said.

Another major event for the drama department is the Iowa High School Speech Association (IHSSA). Students perform in different categories such as solo mime, musical theatre, and reader's theatre. There are different levels based on how well you perform. Everyone starts off at district. Moving on the State only with a rating of one is the highest on the rating scale.

Students move to All-State from state with a judge's recommendation.

"When I don't make it to the next round I don't take it well, but people realize it's not only for competition it's for fun to," said Jenny Curl said.

The kinds of students the drama department looks for are hard working students, and students who have good attendance with a good attitude. Competing with other schools may get tough, but all judges look for something different with each school.

"It's refreshing to see other schools perform to and to see the variety of talents, but it's hard because different judges look for different things," Curl said.

Senior Jenny Curl acting in the very challenging solo mime called The not so lucky frog princess. "It took about a month to prepare, I found this very difficult because I'm not use to acting alone," Curl said.

Senior Dan Bradley acting in the solo mime called Lazy Daze Afternoon. "This act took about two months to prepare, and it was my first time in a solo mime. Everything had to be shown through body actions without words so it was hard to get the point across," Bradley said.

 "NOW I CAN MAKE MY OWN MONEY" MESHIA JONES WHO LIKES THIER OWN MONEY?

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY JAZMINE CASON

What do you do in your spare time?
 Do you get a job?
 Hang out?

We are all different. So we have different households. Maybe your parent(s) tell you have to get a job as soon as you turn 14 years old. Maybe it is you that want to get a job as soon as you can. Maybe it is all about sports in your house.

With that you don't have that much spare time. With slim to none sparetime that gives you less amount of time to get into things that might get you into trouble.

Well Meshia Jones, a senior, lives in a house of where her parents urged her to get a job. "Since my freshmen year," Jones said. She was referring to how long her parents been on her to get a job.

When she started looking for a job it was her junior year. She started at the malls. She filled out applications for Fashion Bug, Southridge Mall, Kids Foot Locker, and The Buckle (Both from Merle Hay Mall).

She stepped out that for a minute and she filled one out at Quick Trip. Then at the beginning of the summer a store called Off Campus opened.

She applied and the job in the middle of the summer. She was excited. She had a job. She told her mom, then her friends. When she got back to school she told her friend Ebony Dixon, junior. Now she can pay for part of her senior stuff.

"I was happy because now I can make my own money," Jones said. "My taste got too expensive."

She got to experience responsibility. She had to balance the two. "I had a lot of responsibility for both school and my job," Jones Said. He loves his car too.

"I feel that school is fundamental and it helps us get further in life," Jones said. Senior Meshia Jones in African American History with Mr. Tate.

Building For the Future
 CONSTRUCTION BEGINS ON ADDITION BY LONG HALLWAY; PROJECT COMPLETION NOT EXPECTED UNTIL NOVEMBER; MOVING INTO CLASSROOMS TO BE DONE OVER WINTER BREAK

 Story by Ashley Douglas.

There is a major construction site on the east side of the building. The parking lot was fenced in at the backside of the school for this project.

Taylor Ohde Kitchell does the construction repairs and changes for all schools in Des Moines. The new building will be attached to the long hall and connected straight from the ROTC and Spanish rooms.

"There will be eight classrooms, a principal's office and new restrooms at the end of the long hall," construction instructor Bob Richards said.

The digging and pouring concrete should be done soon, as well as the beginning construction of the building itself.

"I think this is going to work well for your school," Richards said.

Richards picked up the job about 2-3 weeks ago. Principal Connie Cook looks forward to the new building too.

"I looked at the original design last May and asked them to add restrooms. I'm just happy to have an office," Cook said.

The eighth and ninth graders will be using the new rooms as a transition into Hoover.

"I think we'll be attracting more students from around Des Moines, and I think they will like the grade 6-12 education system," Cook said.

Students and teachers are excited for the positive change also.

"Mrs. Cook's office will be down there (long hall), and we won't have to worry about looking over your shoulder for the little red scooter to run over your ankles," English teacher Catie Miller said.

This project will be finished Dec. 12, but the rooms will not be used until next year.

"The inconvenience may be bad now, but when it's over, it will all be good," Miller said.

SOME PEOPLE SEE SKATEBOARDERS AS PUNKS,, BUT WHAT ARE THEY REALLY THINKING ABOUT WHILE THEY'RE SKATING?

PAGE DESIGN AND STORY BY ALYSSA TAPPS

“Sk8 or Die.” Although this may sound a little odd to some people, but there are others who live this quote...skaters. “It sets you free from everything. It’s your own thing,” senior John Munoz said. Munoz has been skating since he was 16.

Some people skate for fun or for sport. But one of senior Edward Heathcote’s reasons is the girls. “The best part about skateboarding is the feeling of landing a good trick in front of a hot chic,” Heathcote said. But with good tricks, comes bad falls. “The worst part about it is falling,” Munoz said. Skateboarding may not look difficult to some, but once you try it and have your first big fall, you’ll be thinking something completely different. “I don’t worry about anything except falling because you fall pretty hard,” Munoz said.

There are a lot of kids that like to skate, but some people just look at them as trouble. Some adults see skaters as punks or bad kids. This is very ironic because Munoz and all of his friends don’t even smoke. “It keeps me out of trouble,” Munoz said. There are a lot of stereotypes in the world, and one of them is the misunderstanding of skateboarders, or any other type of extreme sport.

Popular places for skaters to go is downtown, parks, or if they just want to skate without worrying about people staring at them, they can go to Skate South on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Skate South sets up ramps and rails and even has competitions. Maybe they just wanted to keep those “punks” off the street.

Senior John Munoz takes a quick breath, and a brief smile, in between tricks. Munoz has been skating for two years and is use to the bumps and bruises.

Sophomore Zach Weidner shows off his skill during lunch. Many of the skateboarders use lunch time to practice their tricks.

Munoz almost takes a nose dive into the pavement after attempting a trick. "The worst part is falling," Munoz said.

The right skateboard is essential. Some popular brands include Vans and Zero. Prices range from $40 to $150. For the beginners, start cheap. People break plenty of boards when they try new tricks.
